To Management and
Those Charged with Governance
Club Champion 401(k) Profit Sharing and Trust

Except as discussed in the following paragraph, in planning and performing our audit of the financial statements of Club Champion 401(k) Profit Sharing and Trust (the “Plan”) as of and for the year ended December 31, 2019, in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, we considered the Plan’s internal control over financial reporting (internal control) as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances for the purpose of issuing our report on the financial statements, but not for the purpose of expressing our opinion on the effectiveness of the Plan’s internal control. Accordingly, we do not express an opinion on the effectiveness of the Plan’s internal control.

We were engaged to perform a Department of Labor (“DOL”) limited-scope audit of those financial statements as permitted by 29 CFR 2520.103-8 of the DOL’s Rules and Regulations for Reporting and Disclosure under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (“ERISA”). Our audit did not include all of the procedures required by auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America and did not include a consideration of internal control relating to the information summarized in Note 3 to those financial statements. Because of the significance of the information that we did not audit, we were unable to, and did not, express an opinion on those financial statements.

Our consideration of internal control was for the limited purpose described in the preceding paragraphs and was not designed to identify all deficiencies in internal control that might be material weaknesses or significant deficiencies and therefore, material weaknesses or significant deficiencies may exist that were not identified. However, as discussed below, we identified certain deficiencies in internal control that we consider to be significant deficiencies.

A deficiency in internal control exists when the design or operation of a control does not allow management or employees, in the normal course of performing their assigned functions, to prevent, or detect and correct, misstatements on a timely basis. A material weakness is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the entity’s financial statements will not be prevented, or detected and corrected, on a timely basis. During our audit, we did not identify any deficiencies in internal control that we consider to be material weaknesses. However, material weaknesses may exist that have not been identified.

A significant deficiency is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control that is less severe than a material weakness, yet important enough to merit attention by those charged with governance. We consider the following deficiency in the Plan’s internal control to be significant deficiencies:

Record Retention.

During the course of our audit, we noted several instances where employee records could not be located, including participant I9s and supporting documentation for a hardship withdrawal request. Additionally, records should be kept of all employees who decline to participate in the plan as proof of their election to ensure that no employees can claim they were not informed of their right to participate. We recommend management design and implement internal controls to ensure appropriate records are maintained for all participants.

Ineligible Entry.

During the course of our audit, we noted one participant who entered the plan one payroll earlier than permitted per the service requirements included in the Plan document. We recommend management design and implement internal controls to address this deficiency and that the Plan Administrator should consider consulting with ERISA counsel on any corrective action that could be required related to this instance and any other instances identified by investigating this incident.

This communication is intended solely for the information and use of management, those charged with governance of Club Champion 401(k) Profit Sharing and Trust, and others within the Plan, and is not intended to be, and should not be, used by anyone other than those specified parties.
