Plan Administrator
The Data Entry Company 401(k) Plan
Bethesda, Maryland

In planning and performing our audit of the financial statements of The Data Entry Company 401(k) Plan (the Plan) as of December 31, 2022, and for the year then ended, in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, we considered relevant plan provisions and the Plan's internal control over financial reporting (internal control) as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances for the purpose of expressing our opinion on the financial statements, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the Plan's compliance with those provisions or on the effectiveness of the Plan's internal control. Accordingly, we do not express an opinion on the Plan's compliance with plan provisions or on the effectiveness of the Plan's internal control.

Our consideration of relevant plan provisions and internal control was for the limited purpose described in the preceding paragraph and was not designed to identify all instances that the Plan is not operating in accordance with the Plan's provisions or deficiencies in internal control that might be material weaknesses or significant deficiencies. Therefore, instances that the Plan is not operating in accordance with plan provisions or deficiencies in internal control, including material weaknesses or significant deficiencies, may exist that were not identified.

Instances where the Plan is not operating in accordance with plan provisions may be indicative of a deficiency in internal control. A deficiency in internal control exists when the design or operation of a control does not allow management or employees, in the normal course of performing their assigned functions, to prevent, or detect and correct, misstatements on a timely basis. A deficiency in design exists when (a) a control necessary to meet the control objective is missing, or (b) an existing control is not properly designed so that, even if the control operates as designed, the control objective would not be met. A deficiency in operation exists when a properly designed control does not operate as designed or when the person performing the control does not possess the necessary authority or competence to perform the control effectively.

A material weakness is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the Plan's financial statements will not be prevented, or detected and corrected, on a timely basis.

A significant deficiency is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control that is less severe than a material weakness, yet important enough to merit attention by those charged with governance. We consider the following deficiency in the Plan's internal control to be a significant deficiency:

Late Deposits of Prevailing Wage Contributions

During our audit, we noted cases where prevailing wage contributions were not remitted to the Plan within the timeline specified by the McNamara-O'Hare Service Contract Act.

Recommendation

Controls should be established to ensure that prevailing wage contributions are deposited as soon as administratively feasible, but not to exceed 90 days.

The identified significant deficiency is not considered to be a material weakness.

Following are descriptions of other identified deficiencies in internal control that we determined did not constitute significant deficiencies or material weaknesses:

Failure to Properly Implement Prevailing Wage Rate

During the course of our audit, we noted that the prevailing wage rate for one participant was not properly implemented. This error occurred due to a misunderstanding regarding whether a service contract was a new contract or an extension.

Recommendation

Controls should be established to ensure that changes to prevailing wage rates have been implemented accurately and timely.

Error in Depositing Prevailing Wage Contributions

During the course of our audit, we identified one participant whose prevailing wage contributions were remitted to the incorrect participant account. This appears to have occurred due to the process being primarily manual.

Recommendation

If possible, procedures should be put in place to automate this process. Controls should also be established to ensure that contributions are remitted to the correct participant accounts.

Failure to Use Forfeitures

During the course of our audit, we noticed that no forfeitures were used to reduce employer contributions or pay Plan expenses during 2022. Per Plan provisions, forfeitures must be used no later than the last day of the Plan year following the Plan year in which the forfeiture occurs.

Recommendation

Controls should also be established to ensure that forfeitures are being used timely and in accordance with Plan provisions.

This communication is intended solely for the information and use of the Plan Administrator, management, and others within the Plan, and is not intended to be, and should not be, used by anyone other than these specified parties.
