The Plan Administrator and Management
NEPW Logistics Inc. 401(k) Plan

In planning and performing our audit of the financial statements of the NEPW Logistics Inc. 401(k) Plan (the Plan) as of and for the year ended December 31, 2025, in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, we considered relevant Plan provisions and the Plan's internal control over financial reporting (internal control) as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances for the purpose of expressing our opinion on the financial statements, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the Plan's compliance with those provisions or on the effectiveness of the Plan's internal control. Accordingly, we do not express an opinion on the Plan's compliance with Plan provisions or on the effectiveness of the Plan's internal control.

Our consideration of relevant Plan provisions and internal control was for the limited purpose described in the preceding paragraph and was not designed to identify all instances that the Plan is not operating in accordance with the Plan's provisions or deficiencies in internal control that might be material weaknesses or significant deficiencies. Therefore, instances that the Plan is not operating in accordance with Plan provisions or deficiencies in internal control, including material weaknesses or significant deficiencies, may exist that were not identified.

Instances where the Plan is not operating in accordance with Plan provisions may be indicative of a deficiency in internal control. A deficiency in internal control exists when the design or operation of a control does not allow management or employees, in the normal course of performing their assigned functions, to prevent, or detect and correct, misstatements on a timely basis. A deficiency in design exists when (a) a control necessary to meet the control objective is missing, or (b) an existing control is not properly designed so that, even if the control operates as designed, the control objective would not be met. A deficiency in operation exists when a properly designed control does not operate as designed or when the person performing the control does not possess the necessary authority or competence to perform the control effectively.

A material weakness is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the entity's financial statements will not be prevented, or detected and corrected, on a timely basis.

A significant deficiency is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control that is less severe than a material weakness, yet important enough to merit attention by those charged with governance.

Following is a description of an identified deficiency in internal control that we determined did not constitute a significant deficiency or a material weakness:

Eligible Compensation – Bonuses

We observed that bonus compensation was improperly excluded from the definition of eligible compensation which impacted the calculation of employee and employer contributions.

The Plan document has historically excluded bonus compensation from the definition of eligible compensation. However, in July 2025, the Plan changed third party administrators and restated their Plan document and the prior treatment of bonus compensation was not retained. Management was unaware of this and did not intend to amend the treatment of bonus compensation. As a result, bonus compensation was treated as it historically had been. This matter resulted in a projected uncorrected misstatement of approximately $17,000 in employer contributions receivable to correct the error.

We recommend that the Plan implement procedures to ensure all eligible compensation used in the calculation of employee and employer contributions aligns with the definitions outlined in the Plan document. We also recommend that management work with their third-party administrator to consider any necessary corrective measures.
